ALPHA REX'S

FIRST PUBLIC APPEARANCE

Hey! Name's Alpha Rex, I play the lead role in LEGO® MINDSTORMS® NXT, an amazingly entertaining experience heading your way this Spring. I'm the Face of the next generation of do-it-yourself LEGO robotics. Come backstage with me as I was getting ready for my premiere in Las Vegas at the Consumer Electronics Show!

DENVER,
3/1/2006, 8:00AM:
Someone is wrapping
me in clear, puffy
paper and putting
me into a suitcase.
Where am I going?

LAS VEGAS,
4/1/2006, 10:00AM:
Hopped out of my suitcase (good to stretch!). Lost an arm on the way, but someone snapped it back on (PHEN!) and fired up my 32-bit microprocessor. Juice flowed through my wires. Heart started beating, and my three motors warmed up. Someone punched a button on my chest and I started practicing my moves.

2:00PM: My Ultrasonic Sensor is in signal overload -- it detected people standing really close to me.

6:00PM: Hopped off an awesome ride on a hotel cart (tipped the guy $10!) to make my first public appearance to 650 reporters. Flash bulbs popped, cameras rolled and I was KING!

6:15PM: Walked across the table, then danced side to side. Someone started singing to me (Whoa, Lady! Back it up!) and I danced faster. My Sound Sensor must pick up volume changes -- so if it gets louder, I move faster.

7:30PM: People keep poking me, picking
me up, then someone pressed my fingers,
and my arms shuffled back and forth.
My Touch Sensor is really sensitive --
that tickled!

10:00PM: I'm exhausted! Walk! Dance!
Stop! Faster! Slower! I'm in sensory overload. Someone shut me off!

Alpha Rex is one of the cool robots you can design, build and program to do anything you want, using the new LEGO MINDSTORMS NXT robotics toolkit. Available in October, MINDSTORMS NXT features a new intelligent brick with Bluetooth, touch, light, ultrasonic and sound sensors, 3 motors, 7 6-wire ports, USB 2.0 cable, 571 LEGO® TECHNIC® pieces and PC/MAC compatible programming software.

I'm a member of the Formula 1
pit crew and today I'm going to start
you on your way to becoming a Ferrari expert! Check out these authentic 1:64 sets, and learn some fun
Ferrari facts! Maybe someday
you'll be an expert, like Michael Schumacher!

A Grand Prix CRASH COURSE

Between the pit lane and the race track is the pit wall where all teams have their command center. This is where the Ferrari team director, Jean
Toot, the technical director,
Pier Giam, and chief race
engineer Luca Badoer give orders to their crews with
the radio set.

Flagg rule the race. The black and white checkered flag for example shows the driver that he has reached the finish line.

A pit crew is made up of 17 team members.
Each tyre is changed by 3 of the crew. In another two handle the jacks, two others are responsible for refueling, and the chief mechanic makes sure it all goes smoothly.

Each every second counts, a normal
oil jack is replaced by a special one on two wheels to make the job go faster.

It's easy to identify the chief mechanic because he's the one who holds
the so-called "Lollipop".
The second the team has finished the fuel stop he lifts it up so the driver is clear to accelerate away.

Ferrari
Finish Line

Quick refueling is essential! To make a pit stop as short as possible, the special pump fills the car with 12 litres of petrol every second. Believe it or not the fuel used by F1 cars is almost the same as the petrol you can buy at your local garage!

Have you noticed that even the mechanics are wearing helmets?
Mainly because with all
the fuel around there is a high risk of fire breaking out.

These gas cans are filled with unleaded
oil for the tyres.

The Weapons and Armour of a Knight

Meet the newest Knights of Morcia! These brave warriors have sworn to defend their kingdom from evil. Their first quest may be their ultimate challenge when they face Lord Vladek and his Rogue Knights in a daring race to the top of the Mistlands Tower!

CHAIN MAIL

Created from small metal rings linked together into a sheet, chain mail gives a knight sturdy and flexible protection from harm. Although it can stop a sword's edge, chain mail is vulnerable to blows from a mallet or club, so it is sometimes combined with plate armour. As seen on Sir Adrie and Sir Kentia, Morcia has adopted this combination as well.

MACE

The mace uses a solid head at the end of a wood or metal handle to deliver powerful, heavy blows. Often studded or spiked to cause extra damage, a mace doesn't need to pierce armour to knock an opponent senseless. Sir Kentia, a skilled master of martial arts, wields his battle mace to find the weak point in any enemy's defenses.

PLATE ARMOUR

Crafted from large metal plates, plate armour can protect a knight from most hand-held weapons. Though it looks heavy, it is surprisingly light when forged from tempered steel. Full plate armour like that worn by King Jayko was historically expensive to make and often reserved for nobles and the wealthiest knights. The gaps between metal plates at the knight's joints are its only real weakness.

CROWN

Historically, a new monarch who ascended the throne was given a crown in a coronation ceremony. Donning an adorned helmet, Morcia's crown is designed to be worn into battle. Jayko received his crown from Morcia's previous ruler, the noble King Maltris - but King Jayko had better watch out, because Lord Vladek plans to yield it himself one day soon!

BATTLE AXE

Special axes designed for combat, battle axes can be large or small, light or heavy, and one or two-handed. Brave Sir Adrie prefers to hold his giant war axe in one hand, swinging it in a mighty sweep as he charges and smashes through anything that is in his way, whether obstacle or Rogue Knight.

ANCIENT POWER UNLEASHED

BRUTAKA

Once he was a loyal guardian of the Matoran and Axonn's best friend. But now, convinced that Mata Nui has abandoned his people, Brutaka has turned selfish and corrupt. He plans to aid the Piraka in their quest to get the Mask of Life, then defeat them and take the mask for himself. Powerful enough to defeat the Toa with one blow of his double-bladed weapon, Brutaka alone is as great a threat as all the Piraka combined. He wears the Kanohi Olmak, the Mask of Dimensional Gates, which can be used to transport a target into another dimension or to another location within this one.

Thousands of years ago, a secret organization known as the Order of Mata Nui dispatched two of its mightiest heroes – Brutaka and Axonn – to watch over the hidden Mask of Life. They were on Voya Nui when a great cataclysm bore it loose from its continent and sent it hurtling up to where it floats today. While remaining hidden, they have aided the Matoran of Voya Nui over the years. But now the coming of the Piraka has caused them to turn against each other, putting the very future of the Mask of Life and the universe itself in jeopardy.

If these two legendary warriors should clash... can anything hope to survive? ■

AXONN

Immensely powerful, Axonn was a champion of justice long before the first Toa ever came to be. He has watched in sorrow and anger as the Piraka have seized control of Voya Nui and has vowed to fight their efforts to steal the Mask of Life. Axonn wears the Kanohi Rodon, the Great Mask of Truth, which can pierce any disguise and spot any deception. His enormous axe can cleave a mountain in half, as well as fire pure energy from its tip. But the true extent and origin of his powers remain a mystery.
